Archaic Law

IT would be interesting to know what has prompted officialdom suddenly to consider invoking a law which, ever since it was passed some 50 years ago, has remained a dormant piece of legislation. We refer to the "warning" which has been issued to business houses and stores that Government might insist on 15-cent receipt stamps being affixed to cash vouchers. Has some official been browsing through the Ordinances and found his fine sense of the majesty of the law outraged because the Colony's shopkeepers and businessmen have all these years been acting in an "illegal", manner by issuing unstamped cash receipts for goods purchased? If so, we can only suggest such zeul and such enthusiasm for the letter of what can properly be regarded as an obsolete law are a trifle misguided. Or is it that the Treasury has fortuitously discovered another potential source of revenue, and one it is determined to exploit? If so, it can only be suggested that it reveals a poor sense of proportion and timing.

MME strict letter of the law is not in disputation, but it is also a fact that it is a provision which has become archaic. Its nonapplication over so many years makes it so. Moreover, the procedure does not apply in England, Australia and other parts of the Commonwealth, It is an unnecessary piece of legislation, and we suggest that Government, rather than contemplate making it effective at this time, should instead consider scrapping | it. The future buoyancy of the Colony's revenues does not depend on collecting a few thousand annually from additional receipt stamps, while to up set and render choatic a such a long period of time seems to be the height of the hand and he had his wish. West opened the six of clubs and South began to feel sorry that he had insisted on a notrump contract. At spades, the probable 'loss would be one trump, one diamond and one chib. At no-trump, apparently, he was headed for a defeat.

South shrewdly played the jack of clubs from dummy at the first trick. The idea was to tempt East into covering with the queen of clubs (assuming that he held that card). East fell for this little ruse by putting up the queen of clubs, and South won with the king of Dummy's tenspot now furnished a second stopper.

East should have played a low club at the first trick. Dummy's jack would hold the trick, but then West could win the second chib trick with the ace, capturing the king. East's queen would then be good for the third club, and declarer would thus win only one club trick.

After winning the first trick with the king of clubs, South laid down the ace of spudes hopefully. West dropped the king, to declarer's delight, and South paused for reflection. The contract was now safe, but South wanted to play for the maximum.

Oversens Investments Of Great Britain: Decline In Value

The decline in the nominal value of U.K. investiments in overseas securities, which has been proceeding almost continuously since the outbreak dt war in 1939, continued in 1951 at a rather faster nace than in the previous year.

According to the annual Bank of England Survey of U.K. Overseas Investments for 1951, just published, the total nominal capital values of such securities amounted to £1,985m. at the end of 1981, compared with £2,019m. a year earlier and £2,038m. two years before.

At the end of 1939 the total nominal capital value of overseas securities owned by U.K. residents was £3,545m.

At the same time, the yield on between 1951 and 1952, and that overseas investments in interest under administrative facilities and dividends rose still further from £222m. to £170m. in 1951, the total for the year | The contraction in turnover being £159.4m., compared with was probably due to some extent £143.8m. in 1950 and £116.4m. to the decline in the price level

Great progress had been made towards a genuine self-government, the State Department said. "Progress might have been greater had not the Communists launched their campaign terror in Malaya.'

It said that Britain's approach to the Communist menace—had been correct and effective, and added that under the leadership of General Templer, the military situation "has vastly improved over the past year, with the guerillas now on the defensive." The State Department closed that the United States had supplied. Britain with ten hellcopters for use against the Malayan terrorists.

The United States also had sent $400,000 worth of road building equipment. The survey said roads were "sorely needed" the interests of military security and economic deve-

CARBON BLACK CONTRACT CLAIM: JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFFS

A claim for the return of $5,500 deposit in respect of a contract for carbon black was allowed by Mr Justice C. W. Reece, Pusine Judge, in the Supreme Court this morning, when he gave judgment for the plaintiffs, the Kwong Hing Hong, merchants, of 17 Wing Wo Street, who brought the claim against the Kwong Cheung Ho, merchants, of 12 Tung Man Street.
